

Woman's Holy Predestination

Samael Aun Weor

Pegasus Collection

59

WOMAN'S HOLY PREDESTINATION

Samael Aun Weor

Woman's Holy Predestination

Lecture given by VM Samael Aun Weor in the 1st Meeting with Gnostic Women.

November of 1976.

Mexico

Samael Aun Weor

Pegasus Colecion Edition: 21 July, 2022

COPYRIGHT:

...“Today and forever, my dear brethren, I renounce, I have renounced and I will continue to renounce the copyright. The only thing that I want is that these books can be sold inexpensively, accessible to the poor, accessible to all those who suffer and cry! May the happiest citizen manage to get this book with the few cents that he has in his pocket! That is all!”

Samael Aun Weor
Pronouncement in the Congress of Guadalajara
Mexico: 29th October, 1976

Table of Contents

| | |
|--|----|
| Introduction | 7 |
| Lecture | 9 |
| Questions and Answers of Interest to Women | 35 |
| Man and Woman | 69 |

Introduction

“Woman! Eternal feminine, monumental Eve of Hebraic mythology, eternal toy of good and evil on Earth according to the use men make of her.”

“The fierce Amazon, female symbol of the dramatic Wagnerian, magnificent prototype of that which is most abject and at the same time most exalted in the world, is certainly formidable.”

“The quintessential woman, iconic woman, original she-devil, prototype of perdition and the fall that not even Amfortas himself, magnificent King of the Holy Grail, was able to resist, now sleeps under the hypnotic power of the evil magician.”

“It is unquestionable that within that most adored female there is the struggle of woman against woman, temptress against savior, love against cruel perfidy that poisons everything.”

“Kundry, Gundrigia, Herodias, the mystical Magdalene of the Wagnerian Parsifal, is not unaware of the living secret of her own existence and knows very well by nature and instinct that she can only free herself of the left-hand and tenebrous power of Klingsor if she finds along her bitter path a man strong enough to conquer himself and reject her.”

“The touchstone, the nourishing mother of the Great Work, is found in Kundry, the quintessential woman, symbol of women without whose presence we are inevitably condemned to the abyss and the second death.

“Adored woman! You are the path of the razor’s edge, the rocky road that leads to Nirvana.”

“Gundrigia, Herodias, Kundry, remember that you are the secret path of the mystery.”

“In the regenerative vessel or feminine sexual yoni, we must drink the initiatic nectar of the holy gods.

“The Holy Grail is the miraculous chalice of the supreme drink, the initiatic cups of Sukra and Manti.

“In the holy vessel of the enchanting woman is contained the exquisite wine of transcendent spirituality.”

“It is better to drink feminine liqueur than mandrake liqueur; if you drink it, you will never stray from the path.

“Sexual eroticism is indispensable; to love is certainly the most pure and delightful longing.”

*Samael Aun Weor
Parsifal Unveiled*

Lecture

Sisters, we will begin our talk this afternoon. I beg everyone to pay the maximum attention.

I want to emphatically tell you that the cycles of male or female activity are governed by the planet Uranus. This means that Uranus, with its two poles, determines the periods of triumphant male activity, and the periods of triumphant female activity. When the masculine pole of Uranus points toward the Sun, the male sex triumphs on Earth. Those are the times of piracy, the times of a Napoleon Bonaparte, etc., etc., etc.; it's also the time of gestation of independence in countries.

When the negative or feminine pole of Uranus points toward the Sun, the energy that flows from Uranus bestows triumph on the woman; she then shines, triumphs, climbs to the top of the ladder, the female sex rules. Let's remember the time of the Amazons, they had an age of splendor. They raised temples everywhere to the Moon Goddess; females ruled sovereign countries, etc. The Amazonian empire spread throughout much of Europe, the Middle East, and as far as Asia. Those who served in the priesthood, those who served in government, those who formed part of the armed forces, were women. Did they build a powerful civilization? No one can deny it; it was true and the whole truth!

Indubitably, there was some cruelty also; male children were incapacitated in such a way that they could not succeed. Either their arms were wounded, their legs were wounded, or in short, some damage was done to their bodies so they could not exercise dominion later. It was cruel, we cannot deny it, but these are matters that belong to history and have already passed.

In war, Amazons distinguished themselves extraordinarily. Remember the Amazon, Camilla, of whom testimony is given by none other than Virgil, the poet of Mantua. Obviously, Virgil, Dante Alighieri's great master, spoke marvelously about the Amazon, Camilla. In war, she was extraordinary; she can be called one of the best generals of that age, very similar in that period to any great male warrior.

In science, Amazons excelled triumphantly. Their empire was powerful and extended from West to East, and if that empire later declined, if it decayed, it was due precisely to the sexual aspect.

Certain groups of Amazons arrived in Greece, and though they were isolated for a while, it goes without saying that they united sexually with various young Greek men, and thereafter changed their customs. The Amazons who had changed influenced the rest so the Amazons who had established the empire, the Amazonian empire, gradually lost power until the male sex completely excelled; it was because their epoch had passed.

There are forty-two years of masculine activity, and forty-two years of feminine activity. These moments, for example, in which we find ourselves are dominated by the female sex; it is their cycle of dominion, of control. Much later, when this cycle of forty-two years is completed, it will return to a new age of masculine dominion. Now, the weight of control falls upon the female sex. This cannot be denied; it is indubitable.

Currently, the woman commands, she asserts herself in science, she asserts herself in the world of commerce, she asserts herself in government, she asserts herself in religions, she asserts herself in the home, she asserts herself everywhere; she is in her epoch.

Uranus directly governs the sexual glands. In women, it governs the activity of the ovaries. So, there are forty-two years of masculine dominance and forty-two years of feminine dominance. Obviously, women can take advantage of this period to transform themselves if they so wish.

In these times, there is a struggle for the emancipation of women. As I see it, women themselves hold the scepter of power at this time, which is within the Uranian female cycle of activity.

Considering these matters, it seems to me that the female sex has the right for dignity and transformation. The female sex should seize this moment in which Uranus is helping to take maximum advantage of the vibration of the planet Uranus. Women have the right to move to a higher level of being, and this is possible by knowing how to love.

“Love is law but conscious love.” “Love is the summum of wisdom.” So said Hermes Trismegistus, the three-times great God Ibis of Thoth, in his Emerald Tablet. Love is the foundation of everything that is, has been, and will be. Woman, through love, can not only transform herself, she can also transform others.

In these times, it is astonishing to know that some nations are already thinking about sending women's committees to fight for universal peace. I have understood that the UN considers the problem of peace to be very difficult, and is seriously thinking of promoting, we could say, a kind of pro-peace propaganda through women's committees.

I simply believe that in these moments the woman displaces the man, and has dominion, complete control. If you add to this that the male sex is now very degenerated, then it is the woman who must regenerate the man. The state of masculine degeneration is undeniable, irrefutable, undisputable. It is the woman's turn to give a hand to the man, to raise him up. If the man has now lost power, it is simply due to his degeneration. Therefore, in these moments, the woman has an inescapable duty, which is to help regenerate the man and to fight for universal peace.

One of the most unsettling problems of our time is the sexual problem. There is no doubt sexology itself is fundamental for any civilization.

I repeat, the male sex is found in a state of involution, decadence; he has abused sex, and that has made him lose dominion over the Earth, over the universe. The male sex is on the decline.

When we study creative energy, sexual energy, in light of Sigmund Freud, author of psychoanalysis, for example, or of Jung, or of Adler, or in light of the Sanskrit tantras of the Tibetans or Hindus or possibly the Yellow School of China, we can discover with great astonishment that transformation of the human being is possible through the creative energy.

The woman has perfect dominion over the organic biology of the man, so she can regenerate him. Women must know a little more about the mysteries of sex. Before, these mysteries were considered taboo or sinful, reason for shame and concealment. Now, in educated countries, sex is studied in the light of science. Freud set the example with his psychoanalysis. Adler, Jung, and other followers have shown the world the reality of Freudian theories.

I consider it vital, then, to touch upon this thorny, this delicate, matter related with transcendental sexology, which is the only thing that can transform the woman and the world.

Obviously, creative energy flows in everything that is, in everything that has been, and everything that will be. Creative energy allows plants to reproduce by their pistils and stamens, which vibrate and palpitate in the flower's calyx. Creative energy allows birds to reproduce, forming their offspring. Creative energy allows all living creatures in the immense sea to reproduce incessantly. It is an energy like electricity, like magnetism, like the force of gravity, etc.; it is an energy we should learn to handle wisely. It is a fast, instantaneous energy, faster than the mind, much faster than the emotions or any other organic movement.

It will have happened to you many times, for example, when you meet a man and instantly, without knowing why, you instinctively like or dislike that man. If he can serve as a complement for you, he will merit your kindness. But if he is not immediately the perfect complement, in fact, he will not arouse any interest in you.

What is astonishing is to see how rapidly a woman can recognize a man and know whether he can serve as a complement in her life or not. It's a matter of seconds, milliseconds, which demonstrates that the sexual center is quite fast, faster than the force of the mind, or of the motor activities of the organism. In seconds, a woman can recognize if a man will serve as a complement to her life or not. This is because the creative energy flows from one neuron to another; the electro-sexual waves are very fast. The sexual center of a woman instinctively captures the reality of any man, and this is obvious.

In life one finds astonishing things. Many times—this time I'm speaking of men—even having a wife, they suddenly don't feel fulfilled, they don't feel whole, they don't feel unified with their wives, they have a feeling something is missing. In these cases, it often happens that in some room, temple, or street, the husband finds this or that woman who he immediately likes. Unquestionably, he fails by committing adultery but deep down what happens is that all the parts of his own Being need their complement. Possibly, they find in the new woman something they did not have before, something that helps them complement each other. Those are the mysteries related with sex, which are well worth knowing.

Creative energy is established in every organic machine, and our body is a machine. The ovaries in women are themselves prodigious, marvelous. A pair of nerve cords are always directed from the ovaries to the brain. This pair of cords winds around the spine, forming the holy eight or Caduceus of Mercury. Through this pair of fine nerve cords—which are not completely physical; they are, we could say, in part fourth-dimensional—the sexual energy, as such, ascends to the brain as a very subtle electrical force.

This force itself reaches the organism through diverse processes. Originally, it comes from the Third Logos, from the Maha-Chohan. Indubitably, to speak this time in Christian terms, I can tell you this energy is divine, and the Third Logos itself is what we call in plain Christianity the Holy Spirit.

The force of the Holy Spirit is prodigious in every sense. The entire universe would not exist without this magnificent force; seeds would not reach germination, animals would not reproduce without this force, trees would not give fruit, the entire universe would not exist. So, the force of the Holy Spirit, the prodigious energy of the Third Logos, is something worth analyzing. There are schools that have been dedicated to this analysis. These schools exist throughout the East, and especially within the tantric Buddhism of Tibet.

To learn to manage this electro-sexual potential is indispensable when in truth one wants to achieve a transformation. Without the creative energy, it would not be possible for a pair of gametes—masculine and feminine, that is to say an ovum and a spermatozoon—to integrate in order to originate fetal conception.

We know well what the function of menstruation is in the female sex. Indubitably, it is provoked because a mature egg is released from the ovary; then the wound that remains in the place where the egg was released bleeds; that is the menstrual process. Indubitably, in that place where it bleeds there exists what in medicine is called the yellow body [corpus luteum], which eventually serves to prevent continuous bleeding.

The interesting thing is to see how this ovum descends to the uterus and there awaits the moment of fecundation. When this ovum is deposited in the corresponding region, the woman really and truly—we could say, intensively—feels the sexual impulse. That impulse has a mechanicity related with the economy of nature. And what happens is the ovum calls for, clamors for, longs for a spermatozoon so one more creation necessary for the economic purposes of the planet Earth might exist. In that state, there is longing on the part of the female for the male, and that longing has no other cause than the ovum desiring union with a spermatozoon as soon as possible.

Let's observe something very interesting. Six or seven million spermatozoa escape during copulation; only one fortunate spermatozoon manages to reach the female gamete, lose its tail, penetrate completely inside the gamete, and begin the process of gestation. Of the many millions of spermatozoa, only one manages to penetrate the ovum. What do you say about this mathematical operation? Furthermore, take note that the spermatozoon itself carries twenty-four chromosomes, and the ovum carries another twenty-four. So, there are forty-eight chromosomes forming the germinal cell, the basic, fundamental cell, by means of which a new human organism is created.

But why does one spermatozoon, and only one, manage to enter the ovum? Who directs this spermatozoon? There is an intelligent principal that directs it! What is it? Why has that one been selected? Indubitably, this intelligent principle is none other than the creative energy of the Third Logos, the sexual energy. So, we find intelligence in the sexual energy; this is formidable. This begins the nine-month process of gestation.

Obviously, the woman has been chosen for the holy predestination, that of being a mother. To be a mother, really, is to be a priestess of nature, a divine, ineffable priestess. A mother deserves total veneration from all the beings that inhabit the universe.

In the Secret Doctrine of Anahuac, women who die in childbirth are worshipped. Unquestionably, those women are true martyrs. We have been told, in Nahuatl, that those women are not going to Mictlan¹ as some suppose but rather to Tlalocan, that is to say to the Paradise of Tlaloc. Even if you think they are the doctrines of our ancestors, and that nowadays we are very Christian and cannot go back, the harsh reality of the facts is that such an affirmation of the Nahua, or Zapotec, or Toltec adepts rests on very serious foundations.

With what right do we dare, for example, to refute the doctrine of our Aztec ancestors if we ourselves came from them? Or do we believe, perhaps, that the Spaniards were wiser than our Anahuac ancestors? We know well that's not so! Rather, they came to destroy a culture; they burned all the ancient codices in the public square and deprived the world of rich esoteric treasures. Fortunately, some of those codices were saved, which has allowed some great Mexican historians, some great anthropologists, to reconstruct part of that ancient history.

Tlalocan, Paradise, is a reality. It is said (it was emphatically affirmed in times gone by) that women who died in childbirth entered the Paradise of Tlaloc. They deserved it because they had given their lives for nature, they had died in fulfillment of that great sacrifice which is to be mothers, they had fulfilled their mission. Woman was born for this holy predestination.

1 The underworld of Aztec mythology.

How great is the joy felt by the mother who carries her child in her arms, who nourishes him at her breasts, who gives him her love! At that moment she is playing the part that the great Mother Nature plays with all her children; she is a true priestess who deserves total respect and great veneration.

It is through this creative energy—which flows and pulsates throughout all of nature, which flows through the trees, which manifests through the creative organs of fish and amphibians, and quadrupeds, and the birds that fly through infinite space—that we can radically transform ourselves. If the woman learns to manage this prodigious energy, she can change her level of being, become something distinct, something different.

First and foremost, the woman needs to know the mysteries of sex. Gone are the times when sex was considered a sin, gone are the times when sex was taboo. Only by the woman knowing the mysteries of sex, learning to manage the creative energy, only in this way can she transform herself and transform the world.

In this meeting, we have to thoroughly and profoundly study the issue precisely related with the extreme sexual problem of these times. There is no doubt that in chemical or metaphysical copulation—to speak in a language that does not scandalize any of the sisters present here—is the secret of human transformation. When the woman learns to transmute her creative energies, she in fact starts a process of intimate transformation, which in fact places her at a superior level of being.

Unfortunately, nowadays, the man has not only degenerated but has also initiated the degenerative processes of the female sex. He has put women on the path of fornication and even prostitution, which is more than enough reason today for the woman to learn to take care of the man, more than enough reason for the woman to study the mysteries of sex for in this way, and only in this way, can she not only transform herself but transform the man.

Chemical or metaphysical copulation is unquestionably related with the great universal copulation. We know well that the eternal masculine fecundates the eternal feminine for life to emerge throughout the universe; this is unquestionable. These two principles pertain to divinity. With just reason, Simon Magus said in all seriousness that two shoots exist; one comes from above (from Urania) and is masculine, the other ascends and is feminine. In the union of these two shoots lies the key to all power.

Observe the sign of the Holy Cross, two crossed beams. One is vertical and represents the masculine principle, the other is horizontal and represents the female sex. At the intersection of both lies the key of redemption.

In an ancient Greek mystery school, a secret, physiological, mystical act that can transform the world and humanity is mentioned. So as to not scandalize many, I will tell you the key in Latin, immissum membrum virile in vaginam feminae sine eiaculatione seminis.

Generally speaking, at the intersection of the vertical phallus in the formal cteis is found the key to all power. Unfortunately, the only thing men and women have done to date is to take advantage of those two crossed beams for animal reproduction.

Thus, the woman is able to place a child into the tapestry of life, to say, “Be!” and it is so. Thus, the woman is able to form a Napoleon within her womb, or a Jesus of Nazareth, or a Hermes Trismegistus, then tell him, “Be, exist!” and he comes into existence in the light of the sun; so too is the woman capable of her own extraordinary self-creation, she can create herself, she can transform herself into something distinct, different, based on the chemical or metaphysical copulation. The interesting thing would be for her to comprehend the process of the universal energies.

Unquestionably, when the Adam-Eve man and woman are loving, when they are united in the chemical or metaphysical copulation, in moments in which the vertical phallus crosses with the formal cteis, there are prodigious, universal, cosmic forces that envelop the couple with a very brilliant, luminous, extraordinary light. Those prodigious forces that were able to create the world, to make it emerge from the chaos, surround the couple, envelop them. In those moments, man and woman united form the perfect androgyny, the Elohim, a sovereign being. Obviously, man and woman united are one being which has power over life and matter, which can bring forth a new child from the chaos.

In those moments, if they know the marvelous science of the Third Logos, they will realize miracles. In such moments, we can retain this extraordinary force for our purification, for our transformation, to develop in ourselves other faculties of the Being, to unfold within ourselves wonders we do not even remotely suspect, to become true angels, ineffable beings.

The woman has the key to that science; she should take advantage of it and open the ark in which is the treasure of ancient wisdom.

Unfortunately, both the woman and the man lose the divine forces when they commit the unpardonable error of reaching what is called the orgasm or spasm in high physiology, biology, and organic pathology. If the woman, in those moments, taught the man the necessity of being continent, if instead of reaching the final consummation of animalistic passion, he were to have the courage to restrain the animal impulse—to avoid that which in organic physiology or high pathology or biology is called the orgasm or spasm—he would retain this mystical force of the Third Logos, of the Maha-Chohan, of the Hindu Shiva. With such subtle forces, she could make of herself something different, she would become triumphant, she would raise her level of being extraordinarily, she would never again have misery or pain, there would be no suffering for her. New faculties would flourish in her whole organism, she would be completely different. A woman like this, transformed her by own creative energies, would be able to transform the man and transform the world because the woman has a unique power to form children within her own womb.

We see these great men who have stood out in history, Krishna of the Hindus, Buddha, Hermes Trismegistus, Jesus of Nazareth, Francis of Assisi, or Anthony of Padua, etc., etc., etc. Where were they formed? In the air, perhaps? Who gave them that body? The great men who have arisen in all the ages, where did they come from? Those who liberated nations, Morelos in our country, or Hidalgo, Napoleon in France (well, he didn't liberate nations, forgive me, rather he enslaved them but, in any case, he was a strong military leader), Bolivar there in the South American countries, where did they come from? What is their origin? Very masculine, very intelligent, very brilliant, but they came from a female belly, from the woman who formed them in her womb, she who gave them life, she who placed them into the very tapestry of existence. The very Superman of Nietzsche cannot come from any place other than the woman's womb. That is why the wise women addressed Jesus of Nazareth and said, "Blessed is the womb which bore you, and the breasts which nourished you."

So then, we men don't have much to take pride in because no matter how much wisdom we have, how much erudition or intellectual capacity we've acquired, a woman formed us in her womb, she gave us life and placed us into the very tapestry of existence.

So, we see the woman can transform the world if she wants; in her hands she has the key of power. Even masculine biology itself can be controlled by the woman, in fact, the woman controls the biological activities of the man; she has this power, an extraordinary, formidable power. The only thing she has to do is retain this prodigious creative energy of the Third Logos, not let it escape, not permit it to merge into the universal currents. That is why the married woman, in the chemical or metaphysical copulation, must assume an edified and essentially dignified attitude.

Obviously, the priesthood of love stems from the Earth's most ancient times. Let's recall in Greece, the priestesses of love, the hetaerae. They were sacred in the most complete sense of the word and knew how to minister that which is called love; and men were supposed to attend to them. Let's recall there in the lands of Japan, the Japanese priestesses. They ministered that which is called love. Unfortunately, the people of the modern age have lost, we could say, the feeling of true love. Modern women must turn to the ancient wisdom to begin to educate the man. Sex is one hundred percent sacred, and the woman should teach the man veneration, love, and respect for sex. If the woman acts as such, she will be able to transform the world definitively.

The whole secret consists of retaining this marvelous energy, which flows in flowers, in birds, in fish and in man, not letting it escape. I repeat, it is possible, yes, if the woman always avoids reaching the consummation of the sexual act, if she were to learn from the beginning to avoid the spasm or physiological or biological orgasm as they say in medicine and biology. If so, she will transform herself, she will purify herself, she will originate new senses of ultra-sensory perception, which will give her access to the unknown dimension. In this way, the woman will begin to acquire a new intelligence, which will enable her to guide her children wisely.

You should not forget that the woman should be her children's educator as well as their mother. She is called to educate her children. I believe, I think, it is my concept, that the mother is called to give the child his primary education. In no way does it seem correct to me that kindergarten is the one called to give the first notions of culture to the child to whom she has given birth.

I think it is the mother who is called to this, to finish forming the fruit of her womb. Later, such fruit can go to liberal arts colleges or to university but his basic orientation should begin in the home. The mother is the home's angel, the home's teacher, she is called to educate her children. Nowadays, all this has been lost.

In the ancient times of Atlantis and Lemuria, mothers educated their children at home, they formed them. In these decadent times in which we find ourselves due to the degeneration of the man, the woman today has lost many of her beautiful qualities. The man has created a false civilization, a mechanical, absurd life, and has also committed the crime of driving the woman from her home. Now, in order to survive in this absurd chaos of the twentieth century, the woman has found no better remedy than to displace the man in offices, industry, banking, commerce, factories, science, etc.

The ultra-modern man is so degenerated he is no longer capable of even sustaining his own home, which is more than enough reason to force the woman to have to take up the battle. We see how in the United States women are in mechanic shops, gas stations, aviation, the army, etc.

A race that is not degenerated, a progressive race, we could say, is different. In a progressive race, the woman is the home's angel, her children's priestess. The fundamental basis upon which the home rested in ancient times was not patriarchy but rather matriarchy.

Now the woman must return to her home. Yet this will not be possible, and is not possible, if she does not regenerate the man, who is no longer capable of maintaining the woman within the home.

The day is coming in which a new civilization will be born in the world. When that happens, the woman will be the priestess of her home again, and the regenerated man will have to go to the country, to the mountain, and plow the earth, and feed his wife and children by the sweat of his brow as the sacred scriptures command.

Nowadays (it gives me pain to say this, but) the degeneration is so great in this era that many women must work to support their own husband.

Seeing all these things concerning such important and delicate matters, I see the urgent and unpostponable need to teach the woman the mysteries of sex.

First of all, she must set herself free from the many absurd restraints. She should approach the study of sex from a new angle. She should no longer consider sexology as taboo or sinful, shameful, or something to be concealed, etc. If the woman has to regenerate the man, she must directly confront the mysteries of sex, she must teach those mysteries to the man.

Unfortunately, the poor intellectual animal mistakenly called man does not know how to respect his wife. He commits adultery like an animal, fornicates incessantly, squanders the money that's for his home in the bar, in casinos, etc.

Unquestionably, the harsh reality of the facts is that the woman is called to assume a new role; she needs to transform herself by means of the creative energy and teach the man the path of regeneration. But this will not be possible if she does not have a superior electric or electro-sexual potential, which will permit her to realize such a magnificent labor.

While the woman continues reaching the physiological spasm or physiological orgasm during chemical or metaphysical copulation, she will not have the electrical potency to be able to persuade the man. When it comes to convincing another, of regenerating him, of showing him the path of salvation, it is necessary to have some authority, and it is not possible to have any authority if the woman is electrically discharged. So, she, the woman, needs to save her own creative energies. Only in this way can she increase her electrical potential so as to have sufficient force or authority to transform the man, take him out of the bars, teach him the path of responsibility, show him the path of regeneration.

Gathered here with these ladies who are listening to me, I want to emphatically tell you that in our school of Gnostic esoteric studies, we work for human regeneration. All the ladies from San Luis Potosi are called to our studies, you are invited with the goal of working for a better world.

It is worth reconsidering not only the biological matters but also the psychological ones related to woman, man, and home.

The woman must become a little more mature from the psychological point of view. Many ladies, for example, go to great lengths to marry and later it falls apart. The woman must know which man she is going to choose because this is fundamental for the rest of her life.

One day (it doesn't matter when) I, as a man, went to a bank. I needed to cash some checks, and the teller very solicitously attended to me. But I experienced such great pain when I saw, when I knew how she looked me up and down so thoroughly, studying my mere physical appearance. I returned a second time and found the same repetition; and a third time, the same repetition plus a strange flirtation. But what was she looking at? My psychological, mental, or spiritual states perhaps, or what? None of this! It was merely physical flirtation. Trying to see the facial features, or those of a male human body, with the purpose of later choosing him as a possible husband or at least as a suitor. This is one hundred percent absurd! I could not help but to feel a strange pain, not for myself because I am worth nothing but rather for that lady, and for many ladies who aspire, for example, to have a husband. They are preoccupied by how the man's face looks, his countenance, the size of his body—tall or short, fat or skinny—if he is good-looking or handsome, or if he is simply ugly and horrible. But no one, absolutely no one, is interested in the question of psychology! To me this seems as absurd as looking at a piece of furniture to see if it is pretty or ugly, if it is useful for the kitchen or the living room.

Marriage is the greatest thing there is in life. I want to tell you there are three important moments in life, three extraordinary events—the first is none other than birth, the second, marriage, and the third, death. There we have the three most extraordinary events.

The woman must take care not to choose a man for mere appearance or for the desire to marry so as to not remain single because that is absurd.

For a woman to want to make of a man, let's say, her ideal, without truly feeling it psychologically, is something incongruous.

Some single ladies are especially worried about the artifice, the form, or the economic splendor of this or that man. They try to ingratiate themselves with him in some way, to make themselves likeable to him. Or they try to know his various aspects to artificially accommodate themselves to his way of being or living, and sooner or later, they fail. That is not the path to marital happiness. In true love, there is absolute spontaneity, no type of artifice exists. When a woman immediately recognizes the being she adores, there is no need for superfluous words, nor for struggle to accommodate her way of thinking or feeling.

In true love, the woman knows if the man belongs to her or not, if he is hers or not. Because when a woman aspires to this or that man, when she woos him in some way, obviously, she also knows if there is some trait in him that does not match her nature, her personality, her psyche, or her particular psychological processes. Clearly, if a woman loves a man, and he has something that does not pertain to her, some characteristic trait that's strange to her, which in no way suits her sentiments, it's because that man is not for her. A union of this type is going to fail.

There is a law, yes, it exists, that makes two beings who love each other find each other. Many times, a woman does not meet the man who is the one to be her husband by law, and she hastens and marries another. All that comes as a result of these mistakes or actions, the fruit of impatience, is nothing but pain.

Remember that in no way can the problem of marriage be approached in the wrong manner because the result is called pain. When one forgets that marriage is one of the three most important factors in life, unpardonable errors are committed. So then, single ladies should pay close attention to this matter of selecting a spouse, a husband; never rush, always know how to wait because the creative energy of the Third Logos that flows and beats in all of creation is intelligent, wise, and brings to each woman her man, the one who belongs to her by Law. Single ladies should not worry about getting married because the one who is to be your husband will come.

We could make a mistake, they may say, and choose someone who should not have been chosen as a spouse. But obviously there is a guideline to follow, and if the woman sees in the man something that does not agree with her nature, something strange in spite of the fact that she is possibly in love, something that has no relation with her psyche, that is, we could say, out of sync (speaking this time in terms of the young rebels), that man is not for her.

This is the creative force of the Maha-Chohan, which gives life to children in the womb, brings forth life out of the chaos, is powerful and intelligent enough to bring to the woman her exact, precise complement, the man who really belongs to her. So, choosing a husband is not difficult but it happens that the modern woman has made it difficult solely because of impatience, not knowing how to wait, getting carried away by superficiality. Patience, moderation, continence is what I advise to the woman.

And to married women, I've said, I've indicated to you the necessity to transmute the creative energy. This is possible,

I repeat, when one—be it man or woman—does not commit the error of reaching the spasm of organic physiology, in other words the animal consummation. Let's remember that phrase from the poet Virgil of Mantua, post coitum omne animalium triste est (after sexual intercourse every animal is sad). The beauty of homes could be conserved if the physiological spasm, the orgasm of medicine, were avoided. Essentially, beauty is divine. The woman could conserve her beauty if she did not waste her creative energies; then her face would never wither from old age. The woman could retain her beauty and even notably improve it by learning to transmute her sexual libido cited by the great Gnostic patriarch, Saint Augustine.

The woman can make of herself what she wants. If she can give life to a child inside her belly, if she can form him within her womb, why can't she give life to herself? Why can't she make herself beautiful at will? If, during chemical coitus or metaphysical copulation, the woman chooses a model for her beauty, an ineffable face, if she places it in front of her bed and observes it, and in those moments makes use of her imagination—trying naturally to have that same face—you can be sure that over time she would acquire such a prototype, such an aesthetic would radiate in her.

Schiller, for example, author of his Aesthetics would be astonished by what I am telling you.

I will tell you that my own mother, while she was pregnant, wanted the child she had in her womb to be white and blond, fair-haired, as we say in our native language.

For this purpose, she placed a white, golden-haired child in front of her bed. During the whole time of her pregnancy, she did nothing but contemplate it, looking at it for half an hour or an hour a day. By means of imagination she modeled that fetus, and in the end that child was born completely fair-haired (golden hair flowing down the back) and white. There is no doubt this child was later sunburned and the fair hair became almost black, deformed by the light of a tropical sun; but there is no doubt that in those days the purpose was fulfilled.

That wasn't the end of my mother's experiment, no, she said, "I'm going to give birth to a black child." She got a jet-black cupid with black and penetrating eyes. She placed it on the wall in front of her nuptial bed during her second pregnancy, and she went to bed looking at this cupid. There is no doubt this is how that second one, who was my brother, came out, completely black like coal, and he continued being jet-black, he didn't need to be sunburned.

A woman, through her imagination, can shape the fetus she carries in her womb. The creative imagination has a magnificent, formidable power. Through imagination during the connection of the lingam-yoni in the nuptial bed, in a state of erotic intoxication, the woman can also contemplate a beautiful archetypal figure to fashion her face, and she will succeed if she identifies with such a figure. It is possible then, by magical methods (we could say erotic, speaking psychologically, something like sexual-magical) to fashion her face, transform it, and acquire beauty. Beauty is something you can acquire if you don't already have it. Imagination, well utilized, can fashion the human face during metaphysical copulation, giving it beauty and aesthetics if this is what is wanted.

Schiller, author of his Aesthetics, could not have dreamt this; perhaps Michelangelo, that great artist of ancient Ithaca, had intuited it but phenomena of this type were studied not only in Thessaly, or the Hellenic lands, or in old Hesperia, they've also come now, through what we investigate, to be known in these modern times.

Here ends this exposition related to the woman and sex.

Di. Disciple

M. Master

Questions and Answers of Interest to Women

- Di. Today, the majority of doctors recommend contraceptive pills as an effective medication to regulate menstruation, and also to relieve strong menstrual pain, above all, to single women. What is your opinion on this matter?
- M. Contraceptive pills for relieving menstrual pain seems to me to be something completely empirical and absurd. In the name of truth, we must say that people these days do not know pure science. That which is now called science is no more than a rotting heap of lamentable theories.

So, I consider those artificial procedures that are in vogue to be one hundred percent detrimental for human health. Menstrual pain should be cured through more efficient means, not through contraceptive pills, which are worthless.

The attitude of all those scientists of the antichrist who invented the very famous contraceptive pill, with all its consequences and derivatives, is criminal. Obviously, all of you women have been victims of the antichrist. Understand the antichrist to be false science, the much-vaunted academy, ultramodernist scientism.

The famous contraceptive pill is not by any means really necessary. Those who truly want a little control with respect to the issue of contraception can work with the Arcanum A.Z.F.

- Di. In the case of a woman who has regulated conception through the contraceptive pill, and then learns the Gnostic teachings, should she do something to detoxify the organism rapidly or will nature take care of it?
- M. As to the intoxication they find they've received with the concoction so praised by the scientists of the antichrist, they should leave everything to nature. [Nature] will certainly take care of it, completely purifying the organism.

We repeat, the system of contraceptive pills is not by any means necessary, it is one hundred percent criminal. Nature is very wise, and has laws to control population excess.

Remember that everything in nature is subject to the Law of the Pendulum; if today there is a population explosion, when our position changes with the movement of the pendulum, we will find ourselves precisely at the other extreme and will have a population decline.

So, there is a plus and a minus in this question of population. Every demographic plus is controlled by the Laws of Nature. When the human population is excessive, war or plague always ensues, or both at the same time. The fact that there is a population explosion in these precise moments indicates, signals, the arrival of war, plague, and many other mass epidemics.

- Di. If, in order to control conception, a person has altered their normal sexual functions with tubal ligation or a vasectomy, what probabilities do they have in sexual transmutation? Is it the same as someone else with normal sexual functions? Would these people be able to create the superior existential bodies of the Being?

- M. First of all, you need the willingness to be a Man. Bear in mind that the Sun is doing a marvelous experiment in the test tube of nature; it wants to create Men.

We know well that the race of humanoids is necessary to capture determined types and subtypes of cosmic energy, which are later transformed and retransmitted to the upper layers of the planetary organism. A sad situation for the humanoid, isn't it? However, the Sun with its wisdom wants something more, and has placed the seeds of Man within the sexual endocrine glands of the humanoid. Such seeds can develop if we cooperate. If we don't cooperate, the Sun's experiment fails.

During the first eight centuries of Christianity, many Men were created, in the Middle Ages, the creations were very rare, and now they are even more rare.

For a Man to exist, the seeds for the superior existential bodies of the Being, located in the sexual endocrine glands, need to be developed appropriately. Such seeds can't develop if cooperation does not exist within us. It is also unquestionable that such seeds cannot develop in an unfavorable environment.

When glandular experiments are performed, when the tubes are closed, when glands are altered, when glands are transplanted, or if monkey glands or something similar are grafted into the organism, the conditions will certainly not prove very fitting for the seeds of Man to develop in such an organism.

If we observe ants, we can realize that they were humanoids in the past. But unfortunately, the scientists who appeared within that race of humanoids dedicated themselves to harmful experiments, removing glands, doing transplants, closing tubes, etc., etc., etc., and as a result, the seeds of Man were unable to develop in those children. Rather, they gradually became smaller and smaller, altering their basic morphology, and today they are the creatures we know so well and which abound in every corner of the Earth.

So, let it be known once and for all that the superior existential bodies of the Being, by which we can become true Men, cannot be developed if we alter the order of the human organism.

- Di. In order to prevent cancer, official medicine uses a type of examination called vaginal cytology or pap smear. How should a woman act in this regard?
- M. In ancient times, when people were healthier, no one had such exams. Obviously, these aforementioned exams were born solely from the lust of scientists, procedures or subterfuges of the mind, invented by them; they are lubricious disorders. Who could deny it? Clearly, the antichrist is very astute, and all of them enjoy examining the sexual organs of women.

If cancer appears, then cure it! There is nothing easier than curing cancer. We have already seen how rattlesnake has the power to make cancer radically disappear, even at the most extreme level.

It's no more than removing the head of the snake, and the rattle too. The remaining meat is put to dry in the sun, and then it is given to the patient in capsules, one every hour until one is healed. But in truth, it is certain that the rattlesnake is very jealous; whoever is undergoing treatment with rattlesnake cannot even take an aspirin, any intervention, any remedy, simple though it be is sufficient to destroy the curative work of the rattlesnake. If one allows the rattlesnake remedy to work without interference, the result will be amazing; the patient will be cured.

So then, the famous vaginal examinations, all those studies of vaginal cytology, all those inventions of ultramodern scientists, are worthless.

- Di. Master, what procedure or technique should married couples employ during the sahaja maithuna to eliminate their "defect-I's"?
- M. During chemical copulation, spouses should both ask for the disintegration of the same defect. It is a lack of charity and love for the husband to be asking for the disintegration of this or that defect and the partner by his side to be asking for the death of another defect. It is precisely the power of androgyny, formed by the couple during the sexual trance, that the Divine Mother Kundalini is going to utilize to incinerate this or that psychic aggregate. If both spouses direct the electrical fire toward the same defect, it will be disintegrated without hesitation. I repeat, both spouses must beg for the same defect.

- Di. Master, what is your opinion on abortion?
- M. Abortion is a destruction of Mother Nature's work. We know well that the Goddess Mother Nature works creating organisms. Each of us carries her within ourselves, in our own psyche. It is she who unites the spermatozoon and ovum, she who prepares the original germinal cell with its forty-eight chromosomes, she is the one who provides the impulses for the genuine formation of the original germinal cell and, thanks to this, the organism develops and becomes a creative archetype.

So then, in the reality of truth, the Mother fights intensively to establish an organism, and when someone destroys her work, they commit a crime, which in no way goes unnoticed by the Great Law. It would be absurd that the Great Law would be in agreement with this type of destruction and, naturally, severely penalizes all those who destroy the work of Mother Nature. Therefore, abortion intentionally provoked is a homicide penalized as such by the Great Law.

- Di. When a miscarriage occurs, can this be considered a karma?
- M. This is not always karmic since an accident can often provoke an abortion. Sometimes it is karmic, as in the cases in which women begin to gestate a child, and again and again fail in their attempts.

- Di. In general terms, what consequences has the legalization of abortion brought on humanity?
- M. Since humanity is dedicated to error, and abortion has been legalized and is already accepted as a normal, official act, it carries a terrible karma for Earth's inhabitants. Clearly, those who have not provoked any abortions will have nothing to pay but all this, in general, will have an influence on the great catastrophes that are approaching.
- Di. What is the cause of current political failure, which is so characteristic of modern government leaders?
- M. This policy failure, deployed by modern leaders, is rooted in their own sexual weakness. It is well known that modern society is controlled by rogues of the intellect. Rogues of the intellect are terrible fornicators, and all this is demonstrated ad nauseum. A rogue is the mixture of intellectualism with the lack of spirituality, and the lack of spirituality causes exorbitant lust, and so I repeat, the world is governed by rogues; it's not strange that this happens.

So then, because the politicians are weak, they are governed by the Superman. The politicians, because of sexual weakness, are governed by the Conscious Circle of Solar Humanity, which operates upon the superior centers of the Being. The politicians come to be like black pawns, which the Fraternity of Interior Light manages. There are white and black pawns, and at times the Fraternity of Interior Light reinforces one pawn or another, in accordance with the karma and dharma of nations.

extracts from the book Revolution of the Woman, 1976 edition,
by María M. R. de Palacios

- Di. Venerable Master, what is your concept of the woman, how do you define her?
- M. A woman, undoubtedly, has the same rights as a man. If we carefully study the word Elohim, which appears in the Bible, we find that it is a feminine noun with a masculine plural ending. The exact translation of this noun is gods and goddesses.

A religion without goddesses is halfway to materialistic atheism because if we did away with the feminine aspect of Elohim (or better said, the Elohim, divine androgynous beings), that is, gods and goddesses, the name of the divinity would then be half-suppressed as a result. In other words, the result would place us halfway down the path to atheism. We cannot remove goddesses from any religion because the divinity itself is both masculine and feminine at the same time.

From this we can deduce, we can establish as a corollary, that a woman has the same rights as a man, and that the intimate self-realization of the Being is not possible without the union of the separate parts—man and woman. Both, united through sex, constitute within themselves an ineffable being, a Creator-Elohim.

- Di. Some students who are familiar with Gnosis have said a woman is a walking womb. In other words, that her importance lies there. What is your opinion of this concept?
- M. A woman could never be, as many mistakenly think, a mere walking womb. Obviously, those who speak in that way demonstrate their lustfulness, their degeneration, their morbid sexual passion.

It's worth remembering with great focus that other centers exist in the body besides the sexual center. Let's remember the intellectual, located in the brain, the emotional in the solar plexus, in the umbilical region, the motor center in the upper part of the spine and the instinctive in the lower part of the same.

So, not only does the generative center exist in the female creature, other centers unquestionably exist too. Therefore, the definition given by some lustful men considering a woman as simply a walking womb, in addition to being (as I already said) lurid and dehumanizing, also demonstrates arrogance and pride in those men who have framed it so stupidly.

- Di. Is the female vehicle karmic? Why are there more women than men?
- M. It does not in any way seem to me that the female vehicle is karmic since the vehicle, the female body, undoubtedly represents the passive-creative aspect of the divine. I've already said, and I repeat again with absolute crystal clarity, that Elohim is gods and goddesses. If the masculine aspect of Elohim has the right to a physical body, the feminine aspect also has the right to have a physical body of a receptive-feminine type.

- Di. Who has the tendency to be more passionate, men or women?
- M. That there are animal passions is obvious, and both men and women have the same animal passions. Keep in mind that ego is always ego. Sometimes it will return, it will come back, it will reincorporate itself, in male bodies and other times in female vehicles. So, it's always the same, and if its passions manifest from a purely masculine angle in one body, the other would express from a rigorously feminine point of view.
- Di. Do women have nocturnal pollutions?
- M. Women have nocturnal pollutions, although many do not believe it. Clearly, an erotic dream produces pollutions. Women who have passed through such nocturnal experiences know very well that feminine pollutions are a fact; and facts are facts, and we have to yield before the facts.
- Di. Menstruation, can it be considered a karma for women?
- M. Menstruation could never be karma. Those who assume this are radically mistaken. We should remember with great focus the people of ancient Lemuria, once located in what are today the raging seas of the Pacific Ocean; then, all human beings were hermaphrodites.

There is no doubt those giants, those colossi, so beautifully represented by some of the Easter Island sculptures, had their menstruation. The feminine part ovulated, and those ova came to the world already fecundated by the masculine principle. I repeat, all those beings carried within themselves the masculine and feminine aspects.

That was the time in which humanity reproduced through the system of gemmation, which is the same system as the birds. The child formed within the egg, and after a certain time would break the shell, and come into existence. The child who was born in Lemuria was nourished by the father-mother.

That was the Golden Age, that was the time when rivers of the pure water of life flowed with milk and honey. Then, neither "mine" nor "yours" existed, everything was for everyone, and everyone could eat from his neighbor's tree without fear. Then, those who knew how to play the lyre shook the entire universe with their most sublime melodies. The Lyre of Orpheus had not yet fallen to the temple floor, shattered.

When humanity separated into opposite sexes, everything changed. That egg was released from the ovary without fecundation because the masculine principle had divorced itself from the feminine. So, cooperation was necessary for creation.

It is worth remembering the great pilgrimages they made from remote places to the sacred temples. The Kumaras directed those mystical processions. The sexual act took place within the cobbled courtyards of the temples of mysteries; humanity reproduced by kriya shakti, that is to say by will and yoga. No one committed the crime of extracting the sacred sperm from their organism. One spermatozoon could escape in any moment to fecundate a womb.

At that time, pain in childbirth did not exist, and children were born without the mother having to suffer. Unfortunately, my dear brethren, the time came in which the people allied, let's say, with certain tenebrous principles that abounded in the world's atmosphere; they dedicated themselves to animal fornication. It was then that the people were expelled from the temples of mysteries, and that became tradition in the sacred books. That's why it's often said that Adam and Eve were cast out of the earthly paradise.

Menstruation cannot be karma. The feminine aspect, separated from the masculine, continued menstruating, continued releasing the ovum to the exterior, only now without being fecundated, and therefore this cannot be karma because it's a natural function.

- Di. What can you tell us about vampirism?
- M. Well, much is said about vampirism; it's said that many women are vampirized. I don't deny that there are sexual vampires; yes, there are. Draculas have existed, and will continue to exist, but what's normal nowadays, what abounds here, there, and everywhere, is that which is commonly referred to as harpies.

Well, we should remember the adventures of the Trojans with those famous hags who Virgil, the Poet of Mantua, spoke of in The Aeneid. There is no doubt that when these black magicians, when these hags, put their bodies in the jinn state they can transport themselves to different corners of the Earth. If they have enemies, they draw near and bite them. Later, the wound appears as a black mark on this or that part of the body, that is, where they were bitten.

So then, properly speaking, it's not about vampirism but about hags, harpies; that's all. That they're called witches is something very common, and everyone knows it.

- Di. In the case of a woman who has pollutions, what is the substance she ejaculates and what is it called?
- M. The feminine seminal fluid is crystalline, we can also call it flexible, malleable, vitreous liquid. Naturally, it does not carry millions of spermatozoa as is definitely the concrete case in men but it carries in itself vital principles, hormones, forces, extraordinary substances. There is no doubt that the woman loses incalculable riches with the orgasm—calories, prana, electric and magnetic principles, sexual hydrogen SI-12, through which it is possible to create the superior existential bodies of the Being.
- Di. We always advise Gnostic girls to abstain from transmutation practices during the days of menstruation since they are in a period in which the organism is detoxifying and secreting useless substances from the organism, and transmutation is a process of inhibition, of absorption.

However, we'd like you to give us your concept about this.

- M. It's in no way advisable for the woman to transmute her creative energies during the time of menstruation. We must take into account that it's a very delicate process since certain substances could ascend to the brain and cause very serious damage.
- Di. We frequently recommend transmutation practices taking advantage of classical music since we have experienced sublime states with the stimulus of ineffable music. What can you tell us about this?
- M. It's possible to do transmutations with the ineffable music of the great masters, you can also sublimate like this. Let's remember the nine symphonies of Beethoven, the Magic Flute of Mozart, which reminds us of an ancient Egyptian initiation, etc. It is also possible to sublimate the creative energies with healthy sports like swimming or tennis, etc., etc. In any case, to sublimate is not harmful.
- Di. We know cases of girls who involuntarily perform transmutation practices. This is because they have already accustomed their sexual organs to absorption. What can you tell us about this?
- M. Can some people transmute involuntarily? That would only be possible if they listened to sweet symphonies, if they were to reach ecstasies like that of [Saint] Teresa of Jesus or that of Francis of Assisi.
- Di. When the woman enters a state of arousal, she experiences certain pulsations in the sexual organs. What esoteric explanation can you give us about that?

- M. Unquestionably, during sexual excitation the feminine creative organs have certain pulsations. There is no doubt those organs obey the systole and diastole of the heart.

Let's remember that the male phallus also has those types of pulsations. Now, if we think about how the clitoris—the specific sexual center of the woman's creative organs—is masculine, we will then explain for ourselves what the peristaltic movement of the feminine creative organs really is.

- Di. Master, regarding the vajroli mudra practices, we have heard of some girls who say that in performing these practices they do not experience sexual emotivity. Our question is if you do not feel arousal, will the transmutation practice be performed correctly? Because in the explanation you give in the book Radical Transformation, it says there should be arousal.
- M. Violent sexual arousal is not necessary to carry out the processes of transmutation. Deep down, those who think this way only look for the satisfaction of lust.
- Di. In order to achieve the intimate self-realization of the Being, what is more advisable, a cold woman or an ardent woman?
- M. It's not necessary for a woman to be passionate to be able to self-realize, neither should she be cold as ice. As is commonly said, try to strike a happy medium. It's necessary to have perfect equilibrium; we must never violate the Law of Balance. That is all!

- Di. What esoteric phenomenon causes frigidity in women?
- M. Many times a woman is frigid simply because of her sexual constitution, because of the constitution of her organism, etc. Yet, if that ego disincarnates and returns with a male body, he could be violent from the sexual point of view. Or vice versa, if it returns, if it reincorporates again in a female one that's healthy and strong, it can express in a lustful manner. Do you understand?
- Di. What is the cause of infertility in women?
- M. The causa causarum of the woman's infertility is what is called karma. Women who did not know how to fulfill their duties as mothers in the past are born infertile in their new existences. Women who never wanted children or who rejected them, when they return, when they come back, when they reincorporate in female vehicles, they must suffer the pain, the moral suffering, of infertility.
- Di. What can you tell us about the woman of the present time?
- M. In the course of history there are periods of excess masculinity and periods of excess femininity. We know well that the male sex governs for forty-two years, and the female sex for forty-two years. In other words, the complete sexual cycle is eighty-four years.

When the masculine pole of Uranus is facing the Sun, the governing force in Uranus comes, descends, it causes the male sex to reign, to command. It is worth remembering, for example, the time of the pirates, the times of the great deeds of men, of the great wars.

We must also remember that when the feminine pole of Uranus is facing the Sun, the force coming from there elevates the woman, and makes her prevail and command. Now in these precise moments, we find ourselves in an excess of the feminine, the woman finds herself in government, in the bank, in society, in science, etc.

Unfortunately, human beings do not know with exactitude when the male sex is commanding, and when it's the female sex. One must take advantage of these energies for our own intimate self-realization of the Being.

In the human being himself, in the humanoid itself, there are forty-two years of strong masculine activity, and forty-two of feminine. This is why it's said that if an individual, for example, is born during an excess of masculinity, in other words, at a time when the planet Uranus vibrated positively, he will undoubtedly have tremendous sexual power during those forty-two years. But when the feminine aspect comes, instead of languishing sexually, instead of weakening, it is even stronger due to the stimulus of the opposite pole. There we have the masculine and feminine forces alternating throughout the marvelous rhythm of the great universe.

In these times, the woman is commanding, is governing, and she will remain in command for a long time. But a time will come in which her opportunity will have passed. When that happens, the man will return to take the scepter of power. This is all I want to say at the moment with respect to the woman.

- Di. Some say that Satan is feminine, that in card fifteen of the Tarot, the Typhon Baphomet, the devil, is depicted with a skirt and breasts. What can you tell us about that? We believe that it's androgynous because if God is androgynous his shadow must also be. We know that God as wisdom is masculine and as love is feminine.
- M. Well, let's speak a little about card fifteen of the Tarot. I am pleased to speak about this card.

I don't know why people judge the Typhon Baphomet so badly. However, Gnostics never ignore that expression which says, "I believe in the mystery of the Baphomet and of Abraxas."

The fifteen card of the Tarot, the devil, is profoundly significant. Let's remember that it's found after cards thirteen and fourteen. Unquestionably, the thirteen corresponds to the death of the "myself", of the "oneself", of the ego. Undoubtedly, card fourteen speaks to us of that temperance, chastity, perfection, which results from the death of the ego. Afterward comes the fifteen, which inevitably corresponds to the primordial androgyny, to the mystery of the Baphomet and of Abraxas, to the devil; this last word is something which horrifies pious people but what it contains is extraordinary fire for the wise.

A raven appears in the Cathedral of Notre-Dame in Paris. He looks fixedly toward the corner of the temple, toward that place where one finds the small cornerstone, the master stone, the stone of truth. This stone has a form, yes, terrible, with horns that horrify—the devil, dread of many pseudo-esotericists and pseudo-occultists. The medieval alchemists said, “Burn your books and whiten the brass.”

Why does the black raven look to the devil? Because we must die within ourselves, because it's necessary to disintegrate the inhuman elements we carry within; it's urgent to reduce them to ashes, to cosmic dust. This is how we can whiten the brass; that brass or copper is represented in the morning star. We know with complete clarity that one day, not long ago, that evening star was also called Lucifer, the Light Maker.

If we succeed, then, in dying to all which is inhuman in us, we will whiten the brass, we will whiten the devil. That devil is the reflection of the Third Logos within ourselves here and now. In the past, he was the most luminous, most resplendent archangel in infinite space. He himself is, we have said, the most important part of our Being, our very Being himself, which in the past was luminous, resplendent, marvelous, the most excellent archangel. Unfortunately, when we fell into animal generation, he was cast headlong into Avernus. Now he is black as coal; it is we ourselves who are keeping him in that state of misery.

Now this will explain to you, my dear brethren, why Lucifer appears in The Divine Comedy, placed there in the heart of the Earth, weeping from his six eyes. That number six repeated three times gives us the 666, the Great Whore.

Yes, he weeps because we made him as he is, we made him black as coal, and now we must whiten him. This is only possible by disintegrating the inhuman elements we carry inside, disintegrating our psychological errors, putting an end to the “me-myself”, to the “oneself”, dying here and now. But if we continue with our errors, if we continually walk on the path of fornication, hatred, lust, envy, hypocrisy, pride, etc., etc., he will continue in disgrace.

He is Prometheus, chained to the hard rock of sex, the Prometheus who suffered horribly and whose entrails were devoured by a vulture. Yes, the vulture of desire has him tied to existence. We should have pity for this particular, intimate devil we have within. To whiten him, then, is urgent, my esteemed sisters and brothers who listen to this recording, it's necessary that we make him resplendent.

If some people value the book of Giovanni Papini, which is titled The Devil, it's because this man succeeded in intuiting that which is the mystery of the Baphomet. He said, “If God is pure love and forgives all creatures, why can't he forgive the Devil?” Those words earned him excommunication; he was the “spoiled child” of the Vatican.

So then, we do not believe in an anthropomorphic devil seated amidst the clouds, casting lightning bolts against the sad anthill of humanity. My dear brethren, let's think of a personal devil, of an intimate devil, of that devil who must again be made to glow, to sparkle and shine.

“Whiten the brass and burn your books.” To whiten the brass is worth more than all the theories written and to be written. When the devil is whitened, he will fuse with our Soul, he will fuse with our Spirit, and then we will change ourselves into something distinct, different—into archangels of light, into lords of light. This is why Lucifer is called the Light Maker. I don't see the reason to brand this divine androgyny as something despicable.

The fifteen card of the Tarot appears after the thirteen, which is the death of the ego, of the “I”, of “me-myself”, and after the fourteen, the man who has acquired temperance, virtue, perfection. So then, the fifteen card is that which becomes resplendent again, it is the divine androgyny, it is the devil transformed into Lucifer, it is the whitened brass.

- Di. What can you say to us about those people who scorn women, who underestimate them?
- M. Those who scorn the female sex, those who consider them inferior, march on the path of error because Elohim is gods and goddesses. The feminine aspect of God cannot be underestimated.
- Di. What should a woman's fundamental concern be with respect to her interior life?

- M. It is necessary for the woman to concern herself with the awakening of consciousness.

It is worth remembering that in the remote past, due to a certain mistake by some sacred individuals, humanity developed the abominable kundabuffer organ. Later, when this organ was eliminated from the human species, something abominable remained within each organism. I refer to all those inhuman elements which together constitute the ego, the “me-myself”, the “oneself”. In other words, the inhuman elements that remain in the animal organisms are simply the bad consequences of the abominable kundabuffer organ, and within those bad consequences is bottled the essence. Now you will comprehend why the essence, the conscious, sleeps profoundly.

However, the consciousness of human beings wasn't always as asleep as it is now. In the beginning, their sleep was vague, but after the submersion of the continent of Atlantis people remained profoundly hypnotized by the sinister power of the abominable kundabuffer organ. Clearly, the ego, the “I”, is the result of that organ, and since it is asleep and subjective within itself, the consciousness remains subjectively processed within it.

If I say that humanity is hypnotized, I am not saying something erroneous. However, people do not realize they are in a state of hypnosis, people believe they are awake, and therein lies their great error. They only come to know that hypnosis exists when the hypnotic force flows more lightly or is concentrated on a certain person in a hypnosis session, for example. Apart from that moment, people are unaware that they are to be found in a state of hypnosis, of profound sleep.

When we come to the world to be born, we form a new personality. Later we enter school and, as is natural, we are educated according to the customs of the time, we are instructed, we are taught all types of prejudices, etc.

In all that, in all that baggage, we come to establish within ourselves a false consciousness. But the essence itself remains sleeping there in the depths. In it is deposited, we could say, the information we need for the intimate self-realization of the Being but this is relegated to, I repeat (and is even qualified as), the subconscious, and the only thing that's considered authentic, real, true consciousness is all that baggage of theories we carry inside, all the false education we received, all the prejudices of race, caste, and nation.

So then, within us, within each of us, a double consciousness has formed. In esotericism, the consciousness is called zoostat. This is written with the letters Z-O-O-S-T-A-T. It's sad to know that a zoostat is divided in two.

Also, it's very certain and the absolute truth that nature adapts itself; it has to accommodate two currents of blood in our organism, two systems, to speak more clearly. The first is that which manifests itself during the vigil state [when] the blood flows in certain vessels. The second is that which expresses during the hours of sleep, in which some different vessels are filled with blood. So then, there are two circulatory systems in us, in accordance with the dual functionality of a zoostat.

We need to wake up, to tear the veil, to finish with all that which is not the Being, to finish with all the prejudices of race, family, nation, with all the false education received, with all the false consciousness. We must destroy the ego, reduce it to ashes so the essence can finally express in us. In the essence is contained all the information we need for the intimate self-realization. That is the urgent thing, it's not to be postponed, not to be delayed.

The woman is called to wake up; she must be interested in it and fight so the man also awakens. No one is closer to man than woman; therefore, she must fight in order to help the man because he is so degenerated in these times.

With the marvelous creative energy, we can create the superior existential bodies of the Being. Much has been said about the astral body. Unfortunately, the humanoids of today do not possess this marvelous vehicle. Typically and let's say, for convenience, one says, "I go out in the astral," etc., etc., but these astral voyages are voyages of the ego. It's the "I", the "me-myself", the "oneself", that takes the place of the astral to travel through the infinite spaces.

One needs to create the authentic and legitimate astral body, and this is only possible by means of the mercury of the secret philosophy, by learning to transmute this marvelous force. The real name of the astral body is the keds-jano body. It's written with the following letters, K-E-D-S-J-A-N-O. Those who know how to consciously transmute the sperm into energy, men and women, can create the kedsjano body. One knows that he has such a body when he can travel with it consciously and positively.

Much later, it will be necessary to create the authentic body of objective reason, that is, the mental body, an extraordinary vehicle, which is only formed through sexual hydrogen SI-12. And finally, one must create the body of will, egoitoorasiona of the Being, that is, the causal body.

Those bodies, I repeat, are only created by means of transmutation of sperm into energy. When one comes to possess such vehicles, when he already has them, he can incarnate within himself his spiritual principle, his real internal Being, becoming an authentic Man, a Man of truth. Within the word Man, I naturally also include women in the same way as the word Elohim, God, also includes the Goddesses.

So then, my dear brethren, work intensively with the creative energy of the Third Logos; it is not to be postponed, not to be delayed, if what we truly yearn for is to one day reach final liberation.

extracts from the book Feminine Enigma, 1974 edition,
by Beatriz Marta de Andreis

- Di. Master, a woman loses energies in menstruation. When the Bible references this aspect of women it says, "When a woman has her regular flow of blood, the impurity of her monthly period will last seven days, and anyone who touches her will be unclean till evening.” (Lev 15:19) Versus nineteen to thirty-three refer to that aspect of women; and the same is referred to when speaking about the fornication of men.² The author of Creative Energy says that menstruation contains the same substances as semen (masculine energy), in other words, lecithin, phosphorus, cholesterol, and substances that serve to fortify the brain. Hence, our question is, can menstruation be considered fornication?

- M. I want you to know with complete clarity that menstruation is never fornication. This is obvious.

The Bible says a woman is unclean when she is menstruating not because the ovum is lost but because the blood that is expelled is obviously charged with deleterious bodily fluids, from which many larvae can multiply.

In any case, if any chaste man is able to eliminate one sperm for fecundation, a woman has the right to eliminate one ovum, and in this there is neither sin nor fornication.

Yes, some vital principles are lost in the eliminated blood but scientifically only one ovum is expelled, which escapes from the Graafian follicle of the ovary.

Let's not go overboard. If we were to say that, for the sake of losing one ovum monthly, a woman falls into fornication, it would be as absurd as saying that by eliminating

² If any man has an emission of semen, then he shall wash all his body in water, and be unclean until evening. And any garment and any leather on which there is semen, it shall be washed with water, and be unclean until evening. (Lev 15:16-17)

one sperm during the practice of sexual magic, a man also falls into the same sin. Let's be judicious, let's reflect with serenity, let's look at things as they are and without exaggeration; menstruation is not fornication.

- Di. The author of the book Creative Energy says the man has an advantage over the woman in intelligence from the moment she begins puberty, in other words, as soon as she begins to lose the ovum monthly, and menstruation is equivalent to a pollution in a man. The same author says that Joan of Arc suspended the natural function of menstruation. Do you believe that the wisdom of H.P. Blavatsky and many other occultists originated from them suspending that natural function?
- M. It's absolutely false to say that menstruation is equivalent to a pollution. Anyone knows that in a nocturnal pollution, a male loses seven to eight million spermatozoa. Instead, menstruation only causes the woman to lose one ovum. So, mathematically, the author of the book Creative Energy is absolutely mistaken in this because the math doesn't add up.

As for the chemical elements like lecithin and others, it is ostensible that they are all found in the blood but the blood eliminated by menstruation only carries dead waste or chemical principles that are already useless for the organism.

- Di. Master, according to the author of the book Creative Energy, a man's brain is biologically greater in volume than a woman's. And in association with what was mentioned in the previous question related with the monthly loss of the ovum—the man has an advantage over the woman in intelligence due to the loss of lecithin, phosphate, and cholesterol, which are substances that fortify the brain—they assert that the man is more intelligent than the woman. What can you tell us about this

- M. Many women surpass men in intelligence. There are many brilliant women. H.P. Blavatsky, Annie Besant, Mabel Collins, etc., were really more intelligent than many men who are considered brilliant.
- Di. When a woman is going to menstruate, she generally feels discomfort in her legs, when she is pregnant her legs swell-up, and when she gets married she gets varicose veins, etc. In addition, many men tend to look at a woman's legs and it produces erotic states. In your works, you have emphasized reproduction by spores in primitive times. Do you think the legs have a special relationship with sex?
- M. Reproduction by sprouting existed in the Hyperborean period, spores detached themselves from the calves; however, the hermaphrodite of flesh and bone, the Lemurian hermaphrodite, reproduced by gemmation.

This hermaphrodite menstruated internally, within the organism. That egg, after a certain time—as in birds—opened itself for the child to be born; that new creature was fed by the father-mother.

With the separation of human beings into opposite sexes, the menstruation continued in the feminine part with the difference that the egg was already fecundated by the organism that produced it.

For the human race to continue, sexual cooperation was necessary, the chemical copulation. This separation into opposite sexes is symbolized in Genesis with that scene in which God takes a rib from Adam—the Eve of Hebrew mythology.

- Di. What can you tell us about the two hallmarks of the woman, that of the hymen and the emotional one, in other words, the one related with excessive erotic sensation, paroxysm, orgasm, etc.?
- M. That of the hymen is magnificent! Virginity was always venerated by the great esoteric civilizations of ancient times. Unfortunately, in this decadent stage of the kali-yuga or black age, everything has changed.

The gringos hate virginity; every girl who is born in the United States is surgically operated on to eliminate her virginity.

It's very natural that a woman feels the sexual impulse. Excessive erotic sensation is another thing. This signals, it indicates, unbridled animal passion, bestial degeneration.

- Di. What message would you give to single women?
- M. Single women must know how to wait. The Great Law and the Father who is in secret know best what we need, and in their moment and hour they will give the single woman the husband she needs. It's not for nothing that we've been told, "marriage and shroud come down from heaven."

With the vajroli mudra, single men and women will be able to transmute their sexual energy and take advantage of it for their intimate development until the time comes for them to descend to the ninth sphere.

- Di. Master, we have learned that women cannot progress on the path like men. Why is this, if both men and women possess their creative energy to form the existential bodies of Being?
- M. A woman can advance on the path the same as any man. She achieves mastery in the fifth initiation of fire. Further advances are only possible through tremendous, intimate super-efforts.
- Di. Master, it's said that when a woman is pregnant, she must automatically suspend any practice of the A.Z.F., and continue her practices as a single person, that is, single person transmutation. Our question is this, if when a woman is gestating a child, she automatically stops ovulating, what does she transmute?
- M. A pregnant woman must wait for the birth of the child before restarting her work of sexual transmutation.

Samael Aun Weor
"Abraxas International" magazine

- Di. Master, some students familiar with Gnosis say that children are an obstacle for the intimate self-realization. Due to [the following] concept (among other things), we disagree, since it's necessary for superior beings to reincorporate and in order for them to reincarnate they need superior homes. And specifically, Gnostics, by means of scientific chastity, will be able to bring superior children, masters of wisdom, to their homes. In addition, to form the sixth race, the superior type of the Gnostic element is needed to bring superior beings to this valley of tears. However, studying the history of some masters of the White Fraternity, we have been able to see that they have not had children. Why is this? Why is it that Jesus the Christ in his sacred history does not appear as having had a child?

- M. To be a mother is not a sin. Blessed is the woman, predestined for birth! Children are never an obstacle for the intimate self-realization of the Being!

No one knows the private life of the great hierophant Jesus. It is unquestionable that he was a complete man, in the complete sense of the word, and therefore it is ostensible that he knew fatherhood. No one knows the personal life of the great kabir Jesus. The cosmic drama he represented wasn't his particular human life, that drama is of a universal order. Many masters also represented that drama in the past, and many will represent it in the future.

As a concrete example of how little is known about Jesus, we have that phrase which he pronounced in Calvary, "Eli, Eli, la'ma sabachtha'ni." Upon hearing it many thought he called Elijah but in truth no one understood it since it is evident that such a phrase was not Hebrew but Mayan. Any Mayan Indian of Guatemala or the Yucatan knows very well that the meaning of that phrase is the following, "Now I submerge myself in the predawn of your presence."

It is unquestionable that the ritual-language of the great kabir was Mayan. The great hierophant learned Mayan and Naga in ancient Tibet. In the Hemis Monastery (in Leh, Kashmir, adjacent to Tibet), there is an ancient text which verbatim reads, "When Jesus left the home in his land, he first went to Egypt, and there he studied the ancient Osirian-Mayan religion. From Egypt, he went to India, and to many cities including Benares and Lahore, studying the teachings of Gautama Buddha. Later, he entered a Himalayan monastery, in which he directly studied the Maya and their cosmic sciences. After twelve years, he became a master."

In Palestine, Jesus, the great kabir of Galilee, was an active member of the Essene sect, which had a Gnostic monastery on the banks of the Dead Sea. Working in the fiery forge of Vulcan, the great kabir Jesus reached the degrees of Perfect Master and Great Elected One. The self-realization is not possible without the practice of sahaja maithuna, sexual yoga.

- Di. Did the Master Helena Petrovna Blavatsky have children?
- M. H.P.B. did not have children because she married the elderly Colonel Olcott when she was very old. H.P.B.'s first marriage with Count Blavatsky does not count due to the fact that she did not lead a conjugal life with the aforementioned man.

- Di. Master, we know that the woman has thousands of ovules, and that only seven hundred reach maturity, and that with transmutation practices not only is the energy of the ovules that reach maturity taken advantage of, but the energy of the other thousands is also taken advantage of, and that in the case of a woman who is unaware of these teachings, she not only wastes the mature [ovules] but also the immature ones, which is why the Gnostic woman surpasses her in all fields. However, this inquietude arises. If the woman stops ovulating upon reaching menopause, what does she transmute?
- M. The sexual energy is not only in the ovules but also in the entire female sexual system.
- Di. What is a suvani?
- M. A suvani is a woman prepared for sexual yoga—the priestess wife.
- Di. What is your opinion of H.P.B.’s work titled Isis Unveiled?
- M. It is a good work; however, the hour has arrived to tear veils and deliver christic esotericism publicly.

extracts from the book Feminine Enigma, 1974 edition,
by Beatriz Marta de Andreis

Man and Woman

By Victor Hugo

Man is the most elevated of creatures,
Woman the most sublime of ideals.
God made for man a throne; for woman an altar.
The throne exalts, the altar sanctifies.

Man is the brain,
Woman, the heart.
The brain creates light, the heart, love.
Light engenders, love resurrects.

Because of reason Man is strong.
Because of tears Woman is invincible.
Reason is convincing, tears, moving.
Man is capable of all heroism,
Woman of all martyrdom.
Heroism ennobles, martyrdom sublimates.

Man has supremacy,
Woman, preference.
Supremacy is strength, preference is the right.
Man is a genius,
Woman, an angel.
Genius is immeasurable, the angel undefinable.

The aspiration of man is supreme glory,
The aspiration of woman is extreme virtue.
Glory creates all that is great;
virtue, all that is divine.

Man is a code,
Woman a gospel.
A code corrects, the gospel perfects.
Man thinks,
Woman dreams.
To think is to have a worm in the brain,
to dream is to have a halo on the brow.

Man is an ocean,
Woman a lake.
The ocean has the adorning pearl,
the lake, dazzling poetry.

Man is the flying eagle,
Woman, the singing nightingale.
To fly is to conquer space.
To sing is to conquer the Soul.

Man is a temple,
Woman a shrine.
Before the temple we discover ourselves,
before the shrine we kneel.

In short, man is found where earth finishes, woman where heaven begins.

These sublime phrases of the great initiate humanist Victor Hugo invite us to live the path of perfect matrimony.

Blessed be love. Blessed are the beings who adore each other.

Samael Aun Weor
The Perfect Matrimony

Chronology of the written works of Master Samael Aun Weor

| | |
|--|---------|
| 1. Doorway to Initiation or Entry-level Perfect Matrimony | 1950 |
| 2. The Revolution of Bel | 1950 |
| 3. Zodiacal Course | 1951 |
| 4. Secret Notes of a Guru | 1952 |
| 5. The Book of the Virgin of Carmel | 1952 |
| 6. Supreme Christmas Message 1952 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1952 |
| 7. The Seven Words. Elemental Occultism for Beginners | 1953 |
| 8. Igneous Rose | 1952/53 |
| 9. Second Christmas Message 1953 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1953 |
| 10. Christmas Message of 1954 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1954 |
| 11. Treatise of Sexual Alchemy | 1954 |
| 12. Christ Will | 1955 |
| 13. Message for the 27th of October of 1955 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1955 |
| 14. Supreme Christmas Message of 1955 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1955 |
| 15. Christmas Message of 1956 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1956 |
| 15a. Major Mysteries | 1956 |
| 16. Christmas Message of 1957 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1957 |
| 17. Fundamental Notions of Endocrinology and Criminology | ? |
| 18. Esoteric Treatise of Theurgy | 1958 |
| 19. Christmas Message for 1958 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1958 |

| | |
|---|-------------------|
| 20. Christmas Message 1958-1959 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1959 |
| 21. Logos, Mantram, Theurgy | 1959 |
| 22. The Yellow Book | 1959 ² |
| 23. Supreme Christmas Message of 1959-1960 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1960 |
| 24. Message of Aquarius | 1960 |
| 25. Supreme Christmas Message 1960-1961 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1961 |
| 26. The Perfect Matrimony | 1961 |
| 27. Supreme Christmas Message 1961-1962 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1962 |
| 28. Aztec Christic Magic | ? |
| 29. The Mysteries of Fire | 1962 |
| 30. The Book of the Dead | ? |
| 31. Supreme Christmas Message 1962-1963 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1963 |
| 32. Supreme Christmas Message 1963-1964 (Gnosis XXth C.) | 1964 |
| 33. Christmas Message 1964-1965 | 1965 |
| 34. Supreme Christmas Message 1965-1966 | 1966 |
| 35. Fundamental Education | 1966 |
| 36. Social Transformation for Humanity | ? |
| 37. The Platform of P.O.S.C.L.A. | ? |
| 38. The Social Christ | ? |
| 39. Christmas Message 1966-1967. The Buddha's Necklace | 1967 |
| 40. Esoteric Treatise of Hermetic Astrology | ? |
| 41. Christmas Message 1967-1968. The Solar Bodies | 1968 |
| 42. Christmas Message 1968-69. Esoteric Course of Runic Magic | 1969 |
| 43. Tarot and Kabbalah | 1969 |
| 44. Christmas Message 1969-1970. My Return to Tibet | 197 |
| 45. Christmas Message 1970-1971. Parsifal Unveiled | 1971 |

2 We have information that the first complete edition of this book was printed in (Colombia) Medellín in 1959, but we have not obtained a copy.

| | |
|---|------|
| 46. Christmas Mess. 1971-72. The Mystery of the Golden Blossom | 1972 |
| 47. Christmas Message 1972-1973. The Three Mountains | 1973 |
| 48. Yes, Hell exists; yes, the Devil exists; yes, Karma exists | 1973 |
| 49. The Great Rebellion | ? |
| 50. Treatise of Revolutionary Psychology | 1974 |
| 51. Christmas Message 1973-1974 (?) | 1974 |
| 52. Christmas Message 1974-75. The Secret Doctrine of Anahuac | 1975 |
| 53. Pistis Sophia Unveiled | 1977 |
| 54. Treatise of Occult Medicine & Practical Magic (X. Mess. 77-78) ³ | 1978 |
| 55.. Seven Lectures on Gnostic Anthropology | 1978 |
| 56. Brothers from Outer Space (Compilation) | |
| 57. The Revolution of the Dialectic (Compilation) | ? |
| 58. Seven Lectures and the Lamasery Exercises (Compilation) | |
| 59. Woman's Holy Predestination | 1976 |

